

ABSTRACT

A flow cell comprises a flow cell head which partly surrounds an inner pipe defining a supply pipe and an outer pipe defining a discharge pipe. The inner pipe defines an end portion, the outer pipe defines an end portion and the inner and the outer 5 pipe are arranged concentrically in the area of their end portions. The end portion of the outer pipe is hold by a press fit in the flow cell head.

Fig. 1